FROM THE GAZETTE OF THE U. STATES.

"France has Ships and we have Men."

It has been repeatedly denied in the democratic prints, that Mr. Jefferson, in a conversation with two respectable gentlemen, declared that the people of this country wished for a war with England, and upon being asked by what means we should be able to carry on such a war, he replied in the words which we have placed at the head of this article. It is, however, a fact, that such a conversation lately took place, and we are now enabled to state the substance of it upon the authority of a gentleman who cannot be mistaken, and who is incapable of intentional misrepresentation. We believe that the very words of the President are preserved, and confidently challenge any of his champions to deny the accuracy of the statement. Both the gentlemen who were concerned in the conversation, have related it in the same manner: both are well known to the editor of this Gazette: no one will venture to call in question the veracity of either.

The statement is as follows:

In July, 1807, soon after the unfortunate and to us disgraceful affair of the Chesapeake, a citizen of Georgetown, and a friend of his, a merchant from London, paid a morning visit to the President of the United States. The latter was introduced by the former as a gentleman residing in England; a partner in a mercantile house in Philadelphia; and a native American, extensively engaged in the American trade. The President introduced a conversation by complaining bitterly of the recent outrage upon the Chesapeake; and the general conduct of the British government towards was examining a box of merchandise, I spoke to the passengers, and told them to look out; whereupon the lieutenant ordered the corporal to take charge of me—and he took me, and all the crew, into the gunboat. As soon as I was taken on board, I was put in irons, which being too large, they slipped off. After this, my hands were lashed across each other ignominiously with a rope, and I was kept under a sentry all the time I was there, which was twelve hours. They detained the vessel eighteen hours.

SAMUEL W. RUSSELL.

Baltimore, Sept. 1808.

I attest the facts abovementioned to be correctly and truly stated, the same date as above.

HENRY BECKWITH, mate.

From the Boston Chronicle.

By the Arcturus, captain Maine, arrived here on Saturday, in 48 days from St. Sebastian, we were favored with a Bayonne paper of July 11th.

It appears that H. M. Joseph I. left Bayonne on the 9th of July, for his capital; that the emperor his brother had accompanied him as far as Bidarte, with a most brilliant guard, in which town the two monarchs embraced and took leave of each other with the greatest tenderness; that H. C. M. slept that night at St. Sebastian, where he was received with the greatest demonstrations of joy and respect.

The new constitution, a copy of which we understand is received by this vessel, was definitively accepted the 30th June, and sworn to by H. C. M., and the deputies; the king having previously to his oath addressed the assembly to which they returned a loyal answer.

The oath was administered by the archbishop of Burgos, dressed in his pontifical robes, attended by other dignitaries of the clergy. The king having placed his hand upon the holy evangelists pronounced the form of an oath that follows, agreeably to the constitution: "I swear upon the holy evangelists to respect and cause to be respected our religion, to observe and cause to be observed the constitution, to preserve the integrity and independence of Spain and her possessions, to respect and cause to be respected personal liberty and property, and to govern only with a view to the interests, felicity and glory of the Spanish nation."

The oath taken by the archbishop and dignitaries of the church, his attendants, president, secretaries, officers of the palace, deputies, &c. &c. was as follows: "I swear fidelity to the king, constitution and laws."

The assembly of deputies have ordered that several kinds of medals should be struck off to commemorate this event.

We understand further by the passengers, that the king had safely arrived in Madrid: that 70,000 more French troops had entered Spain, to subdue the southern provinces; that dispatches have been brought from our charge d'affaires at Madrid, for our government.

We have been particular in enquiring about any movements among the powers of the north, or south of Europe, but could not learn any thing material.

The following is the Speech of his catholic majesty Joseph I. pronounced on submitting the constitution of Spain, which was unanimously adopted by the Spanish national assembly.

GENTLEMEN DEPUTIES,

"I HAVE wished to come in the midst of you before you separate. Brought together by a series of extraordinary events to which all nations have been subject at more or less distant periods, and by the dispositions of my august brother the emperor Napoleon you have displayed sentiments which are those of the age. You will find the result of them stamped in the constitutional act, which will be read to you."

"With it will cease the long disasters of Spain; disasters which the secret uneasiness that has for a long time agitated this nation, gave but too much cause to apprehend. The effervescence which yet prevails in some provinces will cease when the people shall know that their religion, their independence, and the integrity of their country are guaranteed: that their most precious rights are acknowledged, and when they shall see in these new institutions, the germ of the prosperity of their country; blessings which the neighboring nations have obtained only by dint of bloodshed and misfortunes."

"Would to heaven that all the Spaniards were together here! One sole interest binds them, and they would have but one sentiment. We should not see ourselves under the cruel necessity of losing any of those, who, seduced by foreign incitements, must see themselves reduced by force of arms!"

"The enemy of the continent hopes and expects to deprive us of our colonies by taking advantage of the troubles which it excites in Spain. For this reason, every Spaniard should open his eyes, and surround the throne. We bring the actualities of the king and people. If they are disposed to make the same sacrifices as we are, Spain will before long be tranquil as happy in its interior as it will be powerful in its exterior."

"We accept with the highest confidence this contract at the feet of the Deities, reads the innermost recesses of the hearts of men, who disposes of his will, and never forsakes the man who loves his country, and has no other fear than that of conscience."

This speech being finished, his majesty delivered the constitution to the president who handed it to one of the secretaries, and he having read it in an intelligible voice, beginning to end, the president put the question to the assembly whether they accepted the constitution, and all the members answered individually that they accepted it—and then the president answered the speech of his majesty.

NEW-ORLEANS, August 1.

Judge Lewis returned from Opelousas Saturday evening last; and we understand that four of the Indians tried there on a charge of killing the men in Gwinn's boat are condemned to be hung.

NEW YORK, September 3.

GOOD NEWS INDEED!

It is now ascertained beyond a doubt, that the federal tickets for members of congress have succeeded both in Rhode Island and Hampshire, and in the latter state by an overwhelming majority.

Elections for members of congress have been held in four states, in which, two years ago, were chosen

Demo.	Fed.
15	2	for New York.
11	1	for N. Carolina.
5	0	for N. Hampshire.
2	0	for Rhode Island.

This year are chosen

Demo.	Fed.
9	5	for New York.
3	4	for N. Carolina.
0	5	for N. Hampshire.
0	2	for Rhode Island.

We now ask the federalists, every where in the United States, Is not this result astonishing? We ask the patriots of New Hampshire itself, is not the result astonishing even to you? But this result would not have happened if the federalists had not felt that the salvation of their country was at stake; and if they had not dared to confide in their ability to snatch it from destruction.

After this astonishing triumph, there should be no limits to the hopes of the federalists in any part of the Union. Nothing can be so pernicious to the cause, as to say, after the manner of many clever milk and water politicians, "We cannot carry it, and therefore it is in vain to TRY." Let all pitiful, discouraging expressions of this sort be discontinued every where. Federalists! you know what you can do until you try. By trying, you may, as the federalists since the embargo have done every where, succeed beyond your most sanguine hopes. And if after an animated contest you should even fail, what do you lose? Truly nothing. But if you succeed your country may be preserved by your patriotism and your intrepidity! Where then is on the one hand so much to be gained by activity and energy, and nothing can be lost on the other, why should any one yield to despair, and remain inactive? Federalists look at the following calculation of the result of the next election of President.

men of rank, bearing dispatches from the commander of the patriot army. The intelligence they brought is as follows:

The patriots were in possession of Madrid, having defeated the Duke de Berg, commander in chief of the French forces in Spain, in several engagements, and compelling him to retreat to a country seat belonging to the kings of Spain, situated about 18 miles from Madrid—the loss on the part of the French during the different actions that had taken place, had been computed at more than 35,000 men killed, besides wounded; prisoners none, no quarters having been given on either side. The retreat of the Duke de Berg from Madrid was so precipitate, that his Duchess fell into the hands of the patriots. In Portugal the people had massacred a vast number of the French army. Junot, the French commander, has been obliged to retire before them; he requested reinforcements from the Duke de Berg, but was informed that it was not possible to send him any, in consequence of which Junot removed to the castle of St. Julian which he was putting in a state of defence.

Information of the surrender of the Russian fleet lying in the Tagus, consisting of eight sail of the line, to the British squadron blockading the port under the command of Sir Charles Cotton, was daily expected in England, when the Lord Hobart sailed.

On the 17th of July, in lat. 49, 20, N. long. 8, 30, the Lord Hobart fell in with a fleet of transports consisting of 73 sail, bound to Spain, under convoy of his majesty's ships Donegal, Resistance, and Crou-dile. This fleet carried 12,000 British troops under the command of Sir Arthur Wellesly, intended to support the patriot army there.

We further learn, by a gentleman passenger in the packet, that a vessel had arrived at Pictou, in 19 days from Greenock, confirming the above, together with news of a peace between Sweden Russia and England, and the commencement of hostilities on the part of Russia against France.

There was no doubt in England of the complete success of the Spanish patriots against the French troops. Every possible exertion was making in England to supply them with troops, ammunition and stores. 200,000 stand of arms and 100,000,000 of musket cartridges had already been sent to the Spaniards from the different ports in England.

All the transports that were at Halifax, had received orders to sail immediately for England; and all the Spanish prisoners that were at Halifax had been sent to Havana.

A communication between Falmouth and Corunna had been opened, and the first British Packet was to sail for Corunna on the 17th July.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.

A letter from Boston announces the death of Governor Sullivan.

General Miranda and Col. Burr are said to be in the English fleet bound from Ireland to the coast of Spain. Capt. Main, of the Arcturus, on his passage to Boston, passed thro' the fleet, and obtained this information from one of the vessels that boarded him.

New-York Gazette.

IMPORTANT.

Extract of a letter from a highly respectable gentleman at Bayonne, under date of the 27th June, to a gentleman in Baltimore.

"It is apprehended a general embargo on all American ships in France will soon take place. SIXTY-TWO American vessels have been of late condemned by the Conseil des Prizes a Paris. God knows how all this will end! Let us hope, however, that political matters may not be pushed to extremes."

ALBANY, Sept 1.

An obliging friend of ours has received a letter from his correspondent at Detroit, which mentions that "they have had a skirmish with the Indians; but pacified them again by some presents from the governor."—From what cause this arose, and whether any lives were lost, we do not learn.

Captain Henry, passenger in the ship Arcturus, from St. Sebastians, has reached town. We mentioned in yesterday's Gazette, the condemnation of his ship Mars at Bayonne, captured on her passage from Savannah for England. He has communicated to us an important fact which we think it our duty to state. It is this:—While his ship was under occupation he wrote EIGHT letters to Mr. Armstrong, our minister at Paris, relative to his vessel, five of which he knows Armstrong received, and he thinks it probable he received the whole—not one of which letters were ever answered. He also says, that several other American captains wrote to Mr. Armstrong, who were also treated with the same silent contempt.

A passenger in the Arcturus informs us that Murat, the Grand Duke of Berg, had arrived at Bayonne, from Madrid, where he remained dangerously ill, having been stabbed in the breast.

Extract of a letter from Bordeaux, dated the 13th of July, received per the Arcturus Main, arrived at Boston, from St. Sebastians "French troops are continually marching through this place for Spain by forced marches where 40,000 have already arrived."

Extract of a letter from Boston, dated Sept. 5, to a gentleman in this city.

"We have it from a gentleman of respectability, who arrived here this day in the ship Arcturus, from St. Sebastians, that the emperor in a late conference with a gentleman attached to our diplomacy at his court was pleased to express his approbation of all Mr. Jefferson had done, and would take no offence even if we made terms with England; that all which we have heard respecting Spain is true, but the French are marching 180,000 men into Spain, and the road to Madrid is open to them by means of the fortresses which the French previously to the late patriotic revolution had contrived to get into their possession."

HALIFAX, August 5.

Yesterday his majesty's ship Banterer, Captain Shepherd, arrived, with four Spanish feluccas, prizes; and the American brig Izette, Captain Lams, of Portsmouth, 44 days from Rotterdam for Boston.

A gentleman who came passenger in the Arcturus, in a letter to his friend in this city, has copied the following address delivered by Napoleon Bonaparte to his Spanish Junta on leaving Bayonne.

Gazette U. States.

"I now intrust to you your sovereign, and depend upon your exertions in the different provinces to bring back the nation to their duty. Le peuple est un monstre qu'il faut muser. (The people is a monster that must be muzzled.) The means are in your hands—My armies and treasures are at your service."

"Should I not hear, before you reach Madrid, that tranquillity is restored, I will no longer temporize, but will reduce you to subjugation, and treat you as a conquered country."

We can announce with certainty to the public, that we shall shortly have it in our power to publish a full and accurate account of all Gen. Wilkinson's commercial transactions with the Spanish government, accompanied with the original vouchers, signed by the General himself and his agents—by which the whole fabric of Tobacco speculation, on which the Court of Enquiry at Washington, has grounded their opinion, must disappear like a baseless vision: and we are authorized to say, that the statement on that subject, presented to the Court of Enquiry in the shape of an account current, shall be fully developed.

(Orleans Gazette.)

The people their own worst enemies.—When this sentiment dropped from Gouverneur Morris, the democratic scribblers were all seized with a most dreadful fever.—They bawled and raved at the insolence of the man. It was too much to be endured; they were ready to tar and feather. What is now the hue and cry of these same men? Why what he preached, they put in practice. The Embargo which they so loudly commend is the confession of the fact. The people are not to be trusted with their own business.—They'll run into danger—they'll be ruined say our democratic rulers, if we don't interfere, and "save them from themselves." Like an old hen with a brood of young ducks, which, led by instinct, flock to the water, our President is fluttering and cackling on the shore for fear they'll sink. And pray how long is it since the people of this country became such idiots that they were not fit to be trusted with their own business. Are we so stupid that we need a law, and gun boats, and frigates, and standing armies to prevent us from running into the fire—from butting our heads against rocks.—The people are continually asking the President to "let them go," as the Children of Israel did Pharaoh in the land of Egypt. But all the answer that comes is, Why children you'll be torn to pieces with wild beasts—Be still, I know what is best—you are not fit to be trusted with yourselves.

Take off the Embargo, said John Randolph, and produce immediately rises in price—this is the test.

Take off the Embargo, and hundreds of vessels immediately sail to foreign countries, laden with produce—this is the test of its usefulness.

(Trenton Fed.)

Extract from Antwerp, dated June 21, 1808.

"Respecting the cargoes detained, we cannot yet give any favorable accounts, on the contrary appearances are growing worse from day to day. Several American cargoes captured or detained under the several decrees have lately been condemned by the court of prizes at Paris and should the least difficulty arise between your country and France, there is no doubt all the cargoes under detention in France will share the same fate. The cargo of the American brig Sally from your port seized at Flushing for having been in England, has been sold here a few days ago by the Custom House. Times are really getting very critical, and how all this will end it is difficult to foresee."

Should our embargo be raised, and the intercourse with Great Britain renewed, there is a circumstance which may be worth the attention of the merchants and ship holders.

It is known that an act was passed at the last session of the British parliament, putting the commerce of this country on the footing of the most favored nation.—We have not seen the act, but if it conforms to the resolution, the advantages which are held out may be lost without attention.—The resolution is in these words:

"That all goods, wares, and merchandizes, the growth and produce of America, imported to this country, either in British ships navigated according to law, or in ships built in America or captured from an enemy by the American arms, the masters and three fourths of the crews of which should be native Americans, should be admitted at the same rates of duty as were paid for the like articles coming from the most favored nations: and that commodities brought from any other nations or captured from an enemy by the Americans, should be entered in British ports at the lowest duties paid by any other country."

According to this resolution, the master of the ship, and three fourths of the crew must be natives of this country, otherwise the ship will not be treated as a vessel of the most favored nation.

(Norf. Led.)

The editor of the Mercantile Advertiser received yesterday, via Newport, the following letter from one of those unfortunate men who were basely seduced into the service of MIRANDA, and are now wearing out life in the dungeons of Carthage:

Vaults of St. Clara, July 4th, 1808.

The anniversary of the independence of our country.

"RESPECTED FRIEND,

"Supposing that it would not be unpleasant to hear that I am still living, I use an opportunity offered by a vessel going to N. York, to acquaint you with my good health. How long I am to continue in chains and in a dungeon, I know not; I pray God it may be short: for "disguise thyself as thou wilt, still, SLAVERY, still thou art a bitter draught—and though thousands in all ages have been compelled to drink of thee, thou art not on that account the less bitter."

"I perceive by a printed paper, which accompanied a communication from R. B. Forbes, Esq. that you are one of the committee appointed to receive subscriptions for our relief; you may, therefore, possibly have it in your power to give me correct information touching the means by which we, poor miserable creatures, are to be emancipated, and when. This I beg you will be good enough to do by the next vessel which may leave New York for this accursed place.

"For the last three years distress has become familiar to me, and even death has been disarmed of all its terrors. Mine is a state in which

"Life dies, death lives, and nature breeds "Perverse, all monstrous, all prodigious things."

And how long I may be permitted to enjoy health or life is very difficult to calculate upon in a place like this. Indeed I assure you, were it not for some little glimmering hope that I shall yet see my native country (which I dearly love, and can never forget) I should instead of using means to preserve life, be tempted to destroy it.

"If any friends whom I left behind should enquire of you respecting me, be pleased to tell them I still live.

Adieu.

Yours ever,

Robert Saunders.

According to letters received in London from Brest, the prefect there has received the following communication:

"SIR,

"It being his majesty's intention to protect the operations of commerce in the mother country and colonies, and to take every step which can, under existing circumstances, promote the common prosperity of this traffic, and of the colonies themselves, I am authorised by his majesty, for the purpose of facilitating such enterprises, to engage for one fifth of the freight of vessels to be employed, and which shall be fitted out as privateers as well as merchantmen; & to send on board each as passengers from 14 to 20 soldiers, for strengthening the crews and reinforcing the garrisons of the colonies at which they shall arrive.

I have therefore to request that you will give due publicity to these gracious arrangements of his majesty, in the different ports within your precinct, giving notice at the same time that the proposal of the outfitters must be through you transmitted to me within two months, at least, of the intended departure of the vessels: and I have further to request that you will without fail, and immediately on the receipt thereof, transmit the said proposals to me, with your opinion upon their contents respectively.
